

Tuesday, 31 October 2023 | 16:15-17:45 | UniS A 024 | University of Bern

Erez Levon

RESEARCH ETHICS: CONDUCTING SOCIOLINGUISTIC RESEARCH IN AN ETHICAL MANNER

This workshop explores questions about how to conduct sociolinguistic research in an ethical fashion. We will discuss current approaches in the field for addressing ethical issues that arise in sociolinguistics research and for evaluating and minimising risk. Topics to be covered will include soliciting consent, ensuring participant confidentiality, protecting data, and developing respectful and ethical relationships with research participants. We will approach these topics by going through a number of case studies and participants will be able to discuss ethical questions in relation to their own research plans.

This is a CSLS workshop. MA students will receive 0.5 ECTS for active participation.

Please register via KSL by Monday, 30 October, root number: 485744