CALLFORABSTRACTS

The Center for the Study of Language and Society (CSLS) at the University of Bern is organising a summer school for PhD researchers and advanced MA students working on the interface between language and society in its many facets. The aim of the summer school is to bring together a wide range of perspectives, from language variation and change to more qualitative approaches.

We offer guest lectures, workshops on methods and soft skills, as well as the opportunity for doctoral candidates and advanced MA students to present their research and receive feedback from peers and experts in the field.

You are invited to send a short abstract (300 words) of your current work to info.csls@unibe.ch by 29 April.
